I am very happy to know that the Safdarjang Hospital & Medical College, New Delhi is planning to launch its dedicated Website.

I am sure that the website will be a ready reckoner for all the health problems and services being offered by the hospital. It should help the people to reach the distinguished doctors and specialists for advice and consultation.

With the telemedicine gaining popularity in the recent years. It is very necessary, that we use this website as an important medium for starting a dialogue between all the stakeholders in the system of health care.

My congratulations and best wishes for the entire team of Safdarjang Hospital engaged in the launch of website.
